

Advanced Operating Systems

UNIX Basic Commands

Write Command for the following:

- To view your username in Unix?
- To view a list of all the users who have currently logged in?
- To check the Path of the Current directory
- To traverse to different paths
- To create a file of zero sizes
- To create directory
- To delete the directory
- To delete File
- To forcefully delete file
- To copy all files from one location to another location
- To move a File from one location to another location
- To view the Contents of a File
- To append data to file
- To merge two or more file and display output on console as well as save in a file

- To change permissions of the File
- To display last 10 lines of a file.
- To display first 5 lines of a file.
- To Display the calendar for a particular year or month
- To display time in 12-Hour and 24-Hour Notations.
- To display current Date and Current Time.
- To display a message, like Display the message “GOOD MORNING” in enlarged characters.
- To list all files/folders in current and all sub-directories.

List the different Wild Cards in Unix.